Cedar Manor, an assisted living facility, offers Respite Care. Sometimes older adults who live on their own or with family members may need temporary help. They could require short-term specialized nursing home care following an illness or hospitalization. They might want to relocate from the cold Midwest winters to the more temperate climate in Hampton Roads during January and February. Or they might need somewhere to stay while their caregiver goes out-of-town on business or vacation.

In these and other situations where older adults could benefit from occasional assisted-living services, Chesapeake Regional Medical Center's Cedar Manor offers respite care.

Openings are based on room availability.
