Commuter Connections is a regional network of transportation organizations working to improve commutes in the Washington, DC metropolitan area. We offer a host of free services and programs to assist employers and commuters with making smart choices about their commuting needs. Whether it's ride-matching, transit, bicycling, or teleworking, Commuter Connections is poised to get you where you want to go and provide support along the way.

To get started, create an account to register with the Ridesharing Program to find out about others who live and work near you, have similar schedules, and are interested in carpooling and/or vanpooling to and from work. Signing up also allows you to use your account to pinpoint the closest transit stop to your home and work, the closest park and ride lot, and the closest telework center.

If you carpool, vanpool, use public transportation, or bicycle or walk to work two or more days a week, Commuter Connections will get you home in the event of an emergency as part of the Guaranteed Ride Home (GRH) program. GRH allows you peace of mind and is regarded as an “insurance policy” in the event you experience an unexpected personal or family emergency or unscheduled overtime. Some restrictions apply, so be sure to read through the GRH program participation guidelines.

Commuter Connections maintains a strict privacy policy. All personal information provided to Commuter Connections will remain confidential. Commuter Connections will never share or sell your information to outside organizations or companies.
