Event Description

We'll explore how to become more effective at getting what we need.

About the Event

Self-advocacy is key to getting what you want and need as you age or develop health issues or a disABILITY. It is normal to need help to be an effective self-advocate and be taken s eriously, to have your rights respected.

Joanne Cohen and Gayann Brandenburg from the Brain Injury Hope Foundation in Littleton, Colorado, will lead a panel on how to become a more effective advocate for yourself, how to find a trusted advisor and options for peer and professional advocates.

This online program is offered by the Lifetime Learning Institute of Northern Virginia, which is affiliated with Northern Virginia Community College.
